THE GREAT QUESTION ASKED AT THE TABERNACLE LAST NIGHT. The services at the gospel tent opened last night with more fervor than for a night or two past, and the singing was particularly hearty. Mr. Allison congratuisted those present last night upon their large number, considering it to be a Honey Grove, T Saturday night gathering when many could not attend. This is the end of the during the past few fourth wars of the of this order, and these qualifications can best be attested by those who have had fourth week of these protracted meetings, transactions with R. T. Twombly & Son. In the office, east side of Main street, near of the series held in the tent. Through all but justice to Mr. Allison to say that his work has been done in a very earnest, diligent and effective manner, and he was materially assisted by many of the other city pastors. The conversions thus far have been nearly 220,

Last night the sermon was from the text, Gen. ii., 9 (latterpart of the verse): "Where art Thou?" The sermon was very brief and laden with forceful expressions of thought and truth. The GAZETTE this morning has room only to give the skeleton of the discourse. The creature, man, said Mr. Allison, was the highest of God's creations on earth, and to him were all other creatures subject Adam was the representative man of the buman race. He was endowed intellectrally, morally and physically to such an extent as that had Adam obeyed God's law he would have perpetuated a perfect race and have not rendered necessary the obedience entailed sin upon the entire race. Because of his disobedience he fled from before God. Yet God's volce reached him and in shame he stood he fore the Divine Being, his own conscience being his accuser. Because of this sin in Adam, we die through Adam. All of God's agencies, the church of Christ, conscience, morality, intel-lect, all call upon us this day and ask "where art thou?" We cannot know the full extent of sin; we cannot limit or prescribe its extent or power, for it may come down the ages in its entailment of sorrow. But God knows its full scope, and to him there is no past or fature, but one eternal Now. The inquiry continually comes to us, Where are we? We may not know each other's heart, but. The engineers coming from Gainesville God judges us, and we should pause in met the party locating from Fort Worth our business pursuits, in our pleasures, in the providences of God and in his mercles, and sak ourselves where we are Mr. Allison impressed upon his hearers that it was necessary to often take an in immense for ventory of their moral and spiritual condition. In this time of probation and in the troubled sea of life we should special to the Sazette. cast out our suchor of faith and grapple hold of Christ, that the time may not come, when, like

HONEY GROVE, TEX., May 8 .- Railroad excitement at this point has been warm during the past few days. It is generally understood that Honey Grove gets the Santa Fe for a $20,000 bonus, depot grounds and right of way through the county. The Honey Grove people are very indignant with Ladonia, or rather her representative, C. W. T. Weldon. After having secured the right of way gratis from Honey Grove to Ladonia, Mr. Wellon advises the parties from whom the right of way was secured to compel Honey Grove to pay for same and donate proceeds to the Ladonia bonus. It is oped that Mr. Weldon will withdraw his advisement, as it will no doubt injure him as well as his interests here. Mr. Wel-don is president of First National bank, Honey Grove.
